During the excavation which was carried out in 2007 in Moscow Kremlin along with numerous ceramic imports from China, Iran, Byzantium, Ottoman Turkey, Germany and another ceramic imports were found. Along with it, in the objects which are dated the first half of 15th c. the unusual ceramic sherds were found, which attribution wasn't possible. These are large fragments of a bowl with brown painting under colourless glaze and a plate without decoration. Perhaps, these vessels were imported from the territory of Asia Minor.
